The “NeWater Online Curriculum on Adaptive Water Management” is a product of the European FP6 Integrated Project “NeWater – New Approaches to Adaptive Water Management under Uncertainty”, CONTRACT No 511179 (GOCE), and was created by the NeWater project partners, Wageningen University and Research Centre (WUR) in the Netherlands, the University of Osnabrück in Germany, and The Global Water System Project (GWSP) International Project Office at the University of Bonn also played a central role. However, the responsibility for ensuring that the curriculum content does not violate copyrights and usage rights remains with the authors of the teaching materials within the curriculum.

The contents of the website, NeWater Curriculum on Adaptive River Basin Management (<http://www.newatereducation.nl>) are released under the terms of the Creative Commons license accessed through the following link <http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/3.0/>. The license does not cover third-party materials such as cited figures and images. The license permits use of the teaching materials throughout the world without payment but for non-commercial purposes only, and providing appropriate reference to the source. In accessing these web pages, you agree that you may only download the content for your own personal non-commercial use. Please read the Creative Commons license in full before downloading or otherwise making use of the contents of the website. If you do not agree to be bound by the Creative Commons License or any Special Restriction then you may not use this site and its contents.

The authors of the individual presentations and exercises retain the copyright on the teaching materials that they have produced. These have been cited accordingly. When using the teaching materials you must attribute the source as provided for each module and topic and any identified author. Each teaching section has a “Colophon” under which the appropriate citation can be found. This identifies the author/owner(s) of the specific teaching materials in use. Furthermore, if using a cited photograph or other image within the teaching materials, the user must attribute it. The owners of these teaching materials may bring any rights granted to you to an end at any time without necessarily providing notice to you.

This teaching site also contains proprietary materials that are owned by or licensed to us and which are not subject to the Creative Commons License. These materials include our logos and organisational names (e.g. GWSP, NeWater, European Commission, etc), certain photographic and other graphic images, and the design, layout and appearance of and graphics contained within this website. These proprietary materials are protected by intellectual property rights. Unauthorised use of these materials may constitute intellectual property infringement.

This site provides access via hypertext links to resources in other websites for browsing only and in so doing we are not endorsing any linked entities nor authorising any act which may be in breach of copyright or any other third party rights which are protected in law or by international treaties world-wide. We do not accept any responsibility or liability for any of the material contained on any third-party web page.

The contents of the site have been prepared solely for teaching purposes and not for the purposes of giving advice or assisting in decision-making. The authors have taken reasonable care to ensure that their teaching materials are accurate and up-to-date.
